OPENING STATEMENTS

Were you aware that there are millions of people that are now claiming that there are hundreds of things in reality that they vividly remember that are no longer as they remember them. Its called the Mandela Effect

- 1) _____ on the wall...who's the fairest one of all"
(Magic mirror / Mirror mirror)
- 2) Grand Central _____ Place for trains in NY City (Station / Terminal)
- 3) "Smokey _____ Forest fire mascot Bear / the bear
- 4) _____ Notes Book summaries of textbooks (Cliff's notes / Cliff notes)
- 5) What was the name of the company that Ed Mcman delivered checks for when people won the sweepstakes - (He worked for American Family Publishers but he never delivered checks for them) (Publishers clearing house never hired him to deliver checks to people's door
- 6) "Life _____ like a box of chocolates" Is/Was
- 7) It's a beautiful day in _____ neighborhood (This/the)

BIBLE SCHOLAR

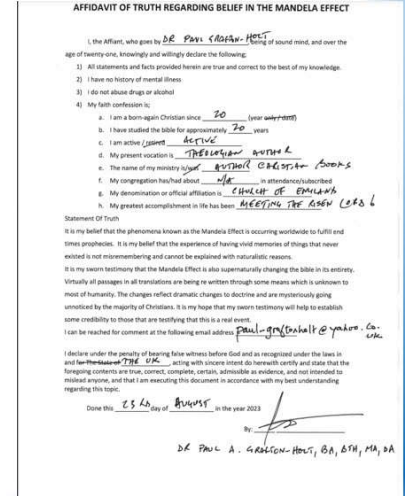

And did you know that there's a very large and growing number of Christians that claim that this same phenomenon is affecting the Bible.

It's the glory of kings is to search out a matter (Prov 25:2) and we are to not to answer a matter before we hear it. (Prov 18:13) All I'm asking is that you would be willing to search out what the scriptures actually teach about preservation like a good berean (Acts 17:11 - Bereans).... I think you may find that this can be happening without it impugning God's character in any way. Especially when He is the one calling for it (Amos 8:11)

Signed Affidavit

On Amazon

Here's a Bible scholar that has written a book claiming that the Bible is supernaturally changing. His name is Dr Paul Grafton Holt. He has four theological degrees including a PhD in theology. Here's his signed affidavit attesting to the fact that the Bible is supernaturally changing.

He's written 12 academic theological books some of which are used in bible colleges as curriculum. One of his books is called "The King James Bible and the quantum effect" where he outlines that this is in fact happening despite everyone's long held doctrine that the Bible can't change and does so from a very authoritative position. His books are available on Amazon

One of the most common arguments against this idea of the Bible coming under judgement by God is that anyone claiming it is just confused because they're biblically illiterate, but in order for that argument to have any validity you would have to be able to make it work with Dr Holt.

And I think it would be ill advised to attempt to disregard his testimony by attempting to disparage him somehow without even looking into who he is, wouldn't you agree? (wait for an answer)

I can send you an interview that he did with Wakeuporelse if you like. Ill send you the link

OBJECTIONS OF THE UNCONVINCED

Here are most of the reasons that we are given in an attempt to explain away our testimony and our evidence. What we are commonly told is

- God preserves His word - the Bible can't change
- The devil isn't that powerful
- You're misremembering
- The human memory is unreliable
- You're confused by all the different versions
- You're confused because you're biblically illiterate
- You're confused by misquotes from pop culture
- You're confused by modernization
- You're confused by misprints
- You're confused by implanted thoughts (Planter's peanut guy vs monopoly guy)
- You're delusional
- You're a charlatan or deceiver (In it for the money)
- You're deceived by a government psyop
- You're deceived by photoshopped tricks on the internet

However, the evidence that there is a phenomenon now seems to be irrefutable and I think that anyone that denies that something unexplainable is happening is going to have to lie to themselves to maintain that position

THE EVIDENCE

1. This phenomenon is huge
 - a. There are millions claiming that this is happening.
 - b. There are many changes in many different forms to the Bible and they are obvious
2. Then there is Testimonial evidence
 - a. The mathematical probabilities prove that there's a phenomenon because everyone remembers hundreds of different things the exact same way, and that's not possible
3. We also have Biblical prophecy predicting this event
4. We have numerous examples of God withdrawing His word as a judgement before
5. There have been four "flip flops" that amount to documented real time observations. Things changed and then changed back again in front of everyone.

6. Residual evidence which has no explanation

L a r g e s c a l e o f t h e p h e n o m e n o n

This is not a few crazy people in their mom's basement that is being amplified by the internet. This is not a few unlearned YouTube Christians that are biblically illiterate so it's not even worth looking into. There are hundreds of channels across all the social media platforms that report on the Mandela Effect. Many of them are Bible based. Some of the larger Mandela Effect YouTube channels have as many as two hundred thousand subscribers each. Facebook has close to one hundred groups with thousands of subscribers in each group.

There are movies about the Mandela Effect. Major magazines like Reader's Digest, Popular Mechanics, Good Housekeeping, and Parade Magazine have all done full-page spreads covering the phenomenon. Fox News has covered it, and Google Analytics shows a huge uptick in searches for the term Mandela Effect around July 2017.

- Some changes are in one Gospel but not in any others, while other changes are in all Gospels.
- Some changes dramatically impact doctrine, while others are benign.
- You can see the same Greek or Hebrew word represented by two different English words in the same paragraph.
- There are changes that only occur one time, while other passages have changed, and then change again.
- We also see changes on major Bible websites like Biblehub that do not appear on other sites like Biblegateway or Bible.com in the same versions.
- Another type of change that seems to trick a lot of people is the multiplication of something that was always in the scripture only once or twice.

Examples of this are references to

- Cannibalism
- Pissing against the wall

Any suggestion that this can be explained by the idea that we are just delusional needs to be set aside because a peer reviewed study on the Mandela effect showed that both groups shared the same memories. Therefore, if we are delusional then so are you. See the study titled: “The Visual Mandela Effect as Evidence for Shared and Specific False Memories Across People” (Page 448 of my book)

T e s t i m o n i a l e v i d e n c e & m a t h e m a t i c a l p r o b a b i l i t i e s

The best evidence that we have by far is that all of humanity is misremembering hundreds of things in a variety of categories including the Bible the exact same way

Normal misremembering would not be so perfectly aligned where everyone is misremembering in unison. This has been proven in various sociological studies and in our life experience. There would have to be a vast difference in the memories of so many people across so many different things from so many people, so many different ages, regions cultures and demographics. We have also been able to prove the impossibility of this mathematically using chat GPT by asking the following question.

C h a t G B T Q u e s t i o n

“Calculate the probability that five people would answer five simple fill in the blanks Bible quiz questions incorrectly and that they would all misremember the exact same way. In other words, all of their answers would be incorrect but identical.

*Assume that there are only 50 possible answers for each question
Assume that the people are not given a multiple choice option but are coming out of their own long-term memory*

*Assume that each person has an above average knowledge of the Bible
Repeat the calculation with all of the same parameters but now expand the number of questions to 10 questions and 10 people*

In this example all 10 people answer all 10 questions incorrectly but they all provide the exact same incorrect answer

*When do you display the answer first display it in a mathematical format and then convert that to a format that is 10 to a certain power
Provide a baseline for our understanding in layman's terms*

For instance, say 10 to the 18th power is one in quintillion then convert your answer to a similar expression."

C h a t G B T A n s w e r

Step 1: Understanding the Problem

We are trying to calculate the probability that 5 people, all with above-average Bible knowledge, answer 5 Bible quiz questions incorrectly but provide the exact same incorrect answers for each question. To do this:

1. There are 50 possible answers for each question.
2. For any one question, only 1 of those 50 answers is correct, and the other 49 are incorrect.
3. The 5 people are working independently, but they all "misremember" in the exact same way for all questions.

Step 2.1: Probability for One Question

Imagine a single question. If 5 people are guessing the same incorrect answer:

1. The first person can pick any incorrect answer. This doesn't affect the probability since we only care about whether the others match them.
2. The second person has to pick the exact same incorrect answer as the first person. Out of the 49 incorrect answers, there is only 1 "correct" incorrect answer (the one the first person chose). So the probability is:

$$\frac{1}{49}$$

3. The third person must also match the first person's incorrect answer. Again, there is only 1 matching incorrect answer out of 49, so the probability is:

$$\frac{1}{49}$$

4. The fourth and fifth persons also each have a $\frac{1}{49}$ chance of matching the first person's incorrect answer.

answer.

Since all of these choices are independent, the probabilities multiply together. For 5 people choosing the same incorrect answer, the probability is:

$$P(5 \text{ people, 1 question}) = \left(\frac{1}{49}\right)^4$$

Why is it raised to the 4th power?

- The first person's choice doesn't matter, but the other 4 people must match that choice. Each has a $\frac{1}{49}$ chance, so the probability is multiplied 4 times.

Step 2.2: Extending to 5 Questions

Now, think about 5 questions. Each question is independent of the others. This means the probability for all 5 questions is simply the product of the probabilities for each individual question.

For 1 question, we already calculated that the probability is:

$$P(5 \text{ people, 1 question}) = \left(\frac{1}{49}\right)^4$$

For 5 questions, the probability is:

$$P(5 \text{ people, 5 questions}) = \left(\left(\frac{1}{49}\right)^4\right)^5$$

Step 3: Simplifying the Math

$$P = \left(\frac{1}{49}\right)^{20}$$

This means we are multiplying $\frac{1}{49}$ by itself 20 times.

Step 4: Converting to a Power of 10

To make the result more understandable, we convert the fraction $\left(\frac{1}{49}\right)^{20}$ into a base-10 number.

1. First, note that $49 = 7^2$, so:

$$\log_{10}(49) \approx 1.69$$

2. Since the fraction is raised to the 20th power, we multiply 20×1.69 :

$$20 \times 1.69 = 33.8$$

3. This tells us that:

$$P \approx 10^{-33.8}$$

Step 6: Verifying the Steps

To recap the logic:

1. For each question, 5 people independently pick answers.
 - The probability that they all pick the same incorrect answer is $\left(\frac{1}{49}\right)^4$.
2. For 5 independent questions, we multiply the probabilities:

$$\left(\left(\frac{1}{49}\right)^4\right)^5 = \left(\frac{1}{49}\right)^{20}$$

3. Converting to base 10, we find the power of 10 equivalent:

$$49^{-20} \approx 10^{-33.8}$$

4. The result is extremely small, illustrating how unlikely it is for all 5 people to provide the same incorrect answers purely by chance.

Key Takeaway

The math works because:

- We calculated the probability for one question first.
- Then, we extended it to multiple questions by multiplying probabilities.
- Finally, we converted the result to a power of 10 for easier interpretation. This logical sequence ensures the calculation is accurate.

Reference for Comparison

A probability of 10^{18} means "1 in 1 quintillion." To visualize: A quintillion is 1 followed by 18 zeros (1, 000, 000, 000, 000, 000, 000). This is an incredibly rare event, such as winning the lottery multiple times in a row.

Final Answer for 5 People and 5 Questions

The chances of five people misremembering five Bible quiz questions the exact same way is approximately:

$$1 \text{ in } 10^{34}$$

This is far rarer than the "1 in 1 quintillion" example. A probability of 10^{34} corresponds to 1 in 10 decillion (1 followed by 34 zeros).

For 10 People and 10 Questions

The chances of ten people misremembering ten Bible quiz questions the exact same way is approximately:

$$1 \text{ in } 10^{152}$$

This is beyond astronomical—so unlikely that it dwarfs concepts like the number of atoms in the observable universe (10^{80}).

Take the quiz

I will ask you some fill in the blank Bible quiz questions. They are very familiar passages, so if you get them wrong the same way everyone else does, you will demonstrate to yourself that you are affected, and that this is not simple every day, run of the mill misremembering. You will have proven to yourself that this is a phenomenon. These first two are King James only verses.

Versions, modernizations or misprints

It is also very important to recognize that the universal changes are in all versions including the KJV 1611 Cambridge Version, all 5 revisions, the 1769 Oxford version the NIV, NAS, ESV, CSB, CEV Etc. They are in every version, therefore if everyone misremembers the universal changes the same way, then the argument that we are confused by different Bible versions, modernizations or misprints must be set aside.

s a m e w a y

The fact that you answered at least five incorrectly the same way that everybody else does proves that this is not simple misremembering and that you yourself are experiencing the Mandela effect.

Unfortunately, because most Christians refuse to allow their doctrines to be challenged, they will not accept this evidence and so its very common that they will try to suggest that the reason the entire world is misremembering in unison is because the whole world is confused by misquotes from pop culture. Is that what you believe?

MISQUOTES FROM POP CULTURE (TELEPHONE GAME)

Keep in mind, you got them all wrong just like everyone else so you are suggesting that this brainwashing from pop culture is happening to you as well, is that your testimony?

As we get into this, I think you will see the absolute impossibility of this idea. Anyone suggesting this has not really thought it through past the first statement. How gullible and prone to implanted thoughts do you really believe everyone is. You included

- For instance, If you hear someone say that there is no God on Facebook, are you somehow strangely overcome by this and then subconsciously adopt this belief without even being conscious that it's happening. And then you wake up one day as an atheist. That's what we're being asked to believe.
- Can you quote just one scripture from memory? How many times do you think you would have to come across a misquote of that scripture before it would be able to take over your mind and brain wash you into thinking that that's what your Bible actually says. Do you honestly believe that it is even possible for one scripture much less 10. And then that same thing happening with not just you but the entire world?
- So what if I see a misquote in pop culture.... I know my Bible. Don't you?
- God has not given me the spirit of fear but of power love and sound mind.
- God commands me to remember 8 times
- What's ironic is the same people that are trying to explain away our testimony by suggesting that we are biblically illiterate are the same people that are trying to suggest that they themselves are so vulnerable to misquotes from pop culture that they are also having their own knowledge of the scripture magically overwritten en masse
- And were not talking 1 or 2 scriptures, and were not just talking about lay people only this is pastors and theologians as well.

- Let me illustrate how impossible this is using an example from pop culture. Everyone remembers the movie snow white and the seven dwarfs where the witch says “mirror mirror on the wall,” but the witch never said that. What she actually said was “magic mirror on the wall.” So in order for this hypothesis to be convincing you would have to be able to produce the movie that is causing all of this confusion. Can you name the movie where a cartoon character is in front of a mirror saying “mirror mirro on the wall” Can you produce the so called misquotes for another 20 known Mandela effects from pop culture.
- This same reasoning goes for all the Bible scriptures that we know have changed. If we’re just confused by misquotes from pop culture than let’s see them. Produce biblical examples of the misquotes from pop culture for all scripture questions I just gave you. If you cant easily find the misquotes then your theory is set aside.
- So if we’re not misremembering or delusional and its not implanted thoughts from pop culture what is your explanation for how everyone is misremembering their bibles the same way?
- You agreed there would have to be a cause for that, so what’s the cause
- In order for your theory to work there would also have to only be one misquote for each recognized Bible change. Do you have any proof of that?
- It would also have to be repeated enough times over decades to overcome everyone’s influences of Bible study, memorization, singing of hymns, reading devotionals etc. Forget about all the disciplines of a pastor that has to prepare and deliver regular sermons as well. Do you have any evidence that’s these alleged misquotes are being repeated enough to overcome all of the disciplines of our faith?

I s t h e h u m a n m e m o r y i s u n r e l i a b l e ?

In an effort to support the idea that we are just misremembering, it is often suggested that the human memory is unreliable. Anyone saying this however doesn't even believe it themselves. Here’s how you can know that is true.

If you visited your aging parent and they didn't recognize you, what conclusion would you draw?

Did you say Alzheimer’s or dementia?

The reason you said that is because you believe that the human memory is so reliable when it comes to vivid memories, that the only explanation for a parent not recognizing their own child’s face would be mental illness. This means that your testimony is that the human memory is extremely reliable when it comes to vivid memories. And yes, I have peer reviewed studies that prove that Mandela Effect memories can be as vivid as a parent's memory of their own child

O n c e m i s r e m e m b e r i n g , m i s q u o t e s f r o m p o p c u l t u r e , d e l u s i o n , c o n f u s e d b y b i b l e i m p l a n t e d t h o u g h t s , b i b l i c a l i l l i t e r a c y

h a v e a l l b e e n s e t a s i d e

If after reviewing this information, anyone tries to suggest that the testimony of millions can be explained by misremembering, misquotes from pop culture, delusion, confused by bible versions, modernizations, misprints, implanted thoughts or biblical illiteracy, they will be lying.

The fact that you got at least 5 wrong the same way as the rest of the world should arrest you if you have integrity. So do you? Do you have integrity?

As I have shown, it's a mathematical impossibility and there has to be some sort of causation for everyone's memories to be identical

- Would you agree that all the trees in a large forest do not typically just fall over without some sort of causation?
- In a similar way, as the math has proven, would you agree that an event like this, which has never happened before in recorded history involving millions of people over a seven-year period, where everyone misremembers the same way would also require some sort of causation?
- Wouldn't it also be a phenomenon, even if you are right, and millions of people are claiming that their reality is changing when they're really just misremembering?
- If millions of people can't misremember the same way by chance, then what's causing it?
- Would you agree that a virus, mind weapon, or demonic attack causing delusion would be examples of a cause for the event, whereas delusion or misremembering are simply the results of a cause? In other words, you have to explain how millions suddenly became delusional for your argument to appear rational.

- Would you agree that since you have no evidence to prove the cause of this event, you are forced to admit that the cause of this event is unknown to you?
- Would you agree that being able to rationally explain the cause of this event represents the foundation for formulating a strong argument?
- Would you agree that without understanding how or why your hypothesis was formulated, that your argument lacks credibility?
- Would you agree that if you suggest that people claiming this are simply misremembering, but at the same time you are admitting that the cause of the mass event is unknown to you, that your position embraces a known and unknown cause at the same time?
- Misremembering = (known cause / natural)
- Phenomenon = (unknown cause / supernatural)
- Would you agree that if you try to maintain two diametrically opposed positions, your argument would appear to be conflicted and unconvincing?
- Based on the last question, would you agree that integrity demands that you would need to decide what the basis of your argument is going to be? I.e. Naturalistic or phenomenon
- So.....do you believe the cause is misremembering (naturalistic) or phenomenon (unknown)? Which one are you going to pick?
- Answer #1: I choose misremembering.
 - Then you still haven't explained to us what is causing the mass event; therefore, your argument is unconvincing and it is overruled and there is a very high likelihood that the Bible is supernaturally changing
- Answer #2: I choose an unknown cause.
 - Then you agree we are not misremembering, and the misremembering argument is overruled and there is a very high likelihood that the Bible is supernaturally changing
- If you do not have an alternate explanation for these observations, then do you agree that you have no further objection to our testimony?

NO! But the Bible can't change

- If your answer is no, would agree with the Sherlock Holmes statement that "When you have eliminated the impossible, whatever remains, however improbable, must be the truth,"
 - "My explanation is the Bible can't change and that's final"
- REBUKE: If you have no explanation for our evidence but you intend to maintain your public position that there is no evidence that the Bible is supernaturally changing, then I submit that you have a serious integrity problem.

If you cannot provide an explanation for this observable repeatable evidence then would you at least be willing to consider the possibility that our long-held understanding of the terms scripture and term word of God may be different than what we have all been taught. And also, that our understanding of preservation doctrines may need to be reexamined as well?

GOD PRESERVES HIS WORD - THE BIBLE CAN'T CHANGE

(See chapter 5 of my book for breakdown of 7 preservation promises)

The 7 to 10 passages that are being relied on to demand that the Bible can't change are being mishandled.

What most Christians have never considered is that the term scripture and the term word of God are not synonymous. This oversight forms the basis of the widespread misunderstanding that the Bible can't change.

EVIDENCE THAT THE TERM "SCRIPTURE" AND THE TERM "THE WORD" ARE NOT THE SAME.

- When most Christians see the term "Word of God," they immediately convert that term in their mind into the written words that appear in their Bible in English. But when you read John 1:1 "And the Word was God," at least in this one example, you have the most emphatic definition of what "the Word" is, and it's not the written scriptures. The term Word here is clearly defined as God. "The Word was with God and the Word was God." How can written words on a page be God. They can't. Therefore, the term "the Word" that appears in your Bible does not always mean the written scriptures. Do you believe that your Bible is God?

- If the two terms are interchangeable, you should be able to use them interchangeably. Read John 1:1-4 but swap the term “scripture” with the term “Word” and see if it bears witness with you. You should be able to exchange them and keep the same meaning.

From this example it would seem that the term “the Word of God” can be understood to mean the expressed will of the Father as seen in Jesus Christ, not your King James Bible in English sitting on your coffee table. The term “Word of God” can mean the written word but it also can mean something much more.

- Genesis 15:1 – This verse uses the term “the Word of God” but it clearly does not mean the written word. It is referring to an event where God was speaking. Based on this example, the term “Word of God” can be describing a vital connection to a living God as opposed to a written communication

“After these things the ‘word of the LORD’ came unto Abram in a vision, saying, ‘Fear not, Abram: I am thy shield, and thy exceeding great reward.’”

- Hebrews 4:12: “The “Word of God” is living and powerful, and is a discernor of the thoughts and intents of the heart.”

This is definitely not a reference to the Bible here in Hebrews 4:12. The Bible is unable to understand the thoughts and intentions of its audience; there are only dead letters in the Bible. (2 Corinthians 3:6)

Jesus, on the other hand, says in:

- Revelation 22:23: “I am He who searches the minds and hearts.”

Hebrews 4:12 says “the Word of God searches the hearts,” while Revelation 22:23 says Jesus “searches the hearts”; therefore, we have yet another passage moving us away from the emphasis that the Word of God is the scripture. Here, it is clear that the “Word of God” is Jesus. Let me say that again. The Word of God is Jesus.

The definition of the term “Word of God” is not your Bible!

- Revelation 19:11-13: “And He who sat on him was called Faithful and True ... He was clothed with a robe dipped in blood, and His name is called ‘The Word of God.’”

Here the clear testimony of the text is that the scriptures are not the “Word of God.” John didn’t say he saw the Bible clothed with a robe; he saw Jesus. And then he proceeded to give Jesus a name. The name He gave this person was The Word of God.”

A definitive feature of the “Word of God” is that it has and gives life. John says of Jesus:

- John 1:4 “In Him was life, and the life was the light of men”

But Jesus maintains there is no life in the scriptures. He says to the Jews:

- John 5:39-40 “You search the Scriptures, for in them you think you have eternal life; and these are they which testify of Me. But you are not willing to come to Me that you may have life”
- This passage makes a clear distinction between the scriptures and Jesus, who we know is the Word of God. This is another clear indication that the scripture and the Word are not necessarily the same thing. At the very least, Jesus is clearly pointing to the refocusing that needs to take place, which I believe is the impetus behind this catastrophic judgment that God has unleashed on His church.

Different meanings from original language

When you see the term “Word” or the phrase “the Word of God” or “the Word of the Lord,” it may mean something different than it did in a different passage. These terms are not always translated from the same Greek or Hebrew words in every case.

- Logos (G3056) John 1:1: “In the beginning was the Word (Logos), and the Word (Logos) was with God, and the Word (Logos) was God.”
- Rema (G4487) Matthew 4:4: “But he answered, ‘It is written, ‘Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word (Rema) that comes from the mouth of God.’”
- Nomos (G3551) Romans 7:12: “So then, the law (Nomos) is holy, and the commandment is holy and righteous and good.”
- Dabar (H1697) Genesis 15:1: “After these things the word (Dabar) of the LORD came to Abram in a vision, saying, ‘Do not be afraid, Abram. I am your shield, your exceedingly great reward.’”
- Graphe (G1124) 2 Timothy 3:16: “All Scripture is breathed out by God and profitable for teaching, for reproof, for correction, and for training in righteousness.”

Singular vs plural

Another observation is that we typically refer to the scriptures as “they” (plural) but refer to the Word as “it” (singular).

Example:

- “I hold the Word of God in high regard; it is important to me.”
- “I hold the scriptures in high regard; they are important to me.”
- This observation also supports the idea that these two terms are not synonymous.
- One represents a personal encounter, while the other is a written record. One is living and dynamic, while the other is static and historical.

Scripture is not the Word

1 Thessalonians 2:13 is often cited as a proof text that the scriptures are the “Word of God,” but this passage is nothing of the kind. They are not saying that the scriptures are the Word of God; they are saying that the message that they provided orally was received as the “Word of God.” Read it for yourself.

- 1 Thessalonians 2:13 NLT “For this cause also thank we God without ceasing, because, when ye received the word of God which ye heard of us, ye received it not as the word of men, but as it is in truth, the word of God, which effectually worketh also in you that believe.”

The Bible is a compilation of writings that we refer to as the scriptures, and the scriptures contain the words of God. The scriptures promise that God's word will not change, but they do not promise that the scriptures won't change. My book goes to great lengths to show convincingly that the term scripture and the term word of God do not mean the same thing. If your willing to accept this, everything changes.

THE DEVIL ISN'T THAT POWERFUL

The only reason people suggest this is because it hasn't dawned on them that God is the one calling for this. They immediately assume that we believe the devil has somehow been able to get the upper hand on God. Of course, the devil isn't powerful enough to overcome God, unless God gives him permission. We see this very clearly in chapters 1 and 2 of Job when God gave permission to Satan to overcome Job. We also see permission like this given in Revelation 13. Additionally, we see numerous places in the scriptures where God withdrew his word as a judgment. One example of course is Amos 8:11. This passage clearly demonstrates that God is willing to remove His word as a judgement. If He did it before He would certainly, do it again. And if He does, its not because the devil overpowered Him.

YOU'RE CONFUSED BY DIFFERENT VERSIONS

Many of the Bible changes that we all recognize are in all versions so we can't be confused by different versions when we're talking about universal changes. You can find a list of universal changes starting on page 82 of the Supernatural Bible change book. (See Wakeuporelse.com)

These changes are not only in every translation, they are not only wildly unfamiliar, they are also doctrinal paradoxes.

Universal changes would also eliminate the modernization and the misprint arguments. Anyone that makes this claim simply hasn't done their research and should be ashamed of themselves for treating this important topic with such a cavalier attitude. If church leaders do not stop denying the obvious God is going to remove His hand from you and paint ichabod across the door post of your church.

YOU'RE CONFUSED BECAUSE YOU'RE BIBLICALLY ILLITERATE

Biblical literacy has nothing to do with the validity of someone's testimony of whether or not they believe the Bible is supernaturally changing. The validity of our testimony is based on the reliability of the human memory. Well....God commands you to remember 8 different times in the Bible. Do you think He would command you to do something that you were incapable of doing?

18 US Code 3502 is the law that recognizes the reliability of the human memory. "Testimony is admissible in evidence." Someone could memorize five scriptures throughout their entire life and never read any other part of the rest of the Bible. By anyone's standards, these people would be biblically illiterate, however, for those few scriptures, their testimony would be as reliable as someone with a PHD in theology. Wouldn't it?

YOU'RE CONFUSED BY IMPLANTED THOUGHTS

It's very common for people to invoke the Planters peanut guy as an explanation for why we believe the Monopoly guy always had a monocle. They are suggesting that we are confusing the two icons and that we're just befuddled. But this implanted thought theory is then being recklessly applied to the entire phenomenon. The insinuation is that this implanted thought brain malfunction is happening on a broad scale across hundreds of different things.

It is a huge leap to apply this one example to the entire phenomenon. But in order for this to be possible you would have to produce a surrogate for each of the reported Mandela effects. In other words, I'm not confusing mirror mirror on the wall because of the planters peanut guy.

YOU'RE CHARLATAN OR A DECEIVER

This is an outrageous unfounded accusation and any hopped-up preacher that tries this should be ashamed of himself.

How do you know the minds and hearts of hundreds of thousands or millions of Christians. Anyone trying this is going to be guilty of bearing false witness against some of God's children. Do you really believe that an untold number of Christians are all premeditated liars? That's your explanation for hundreds of thousands and possibly millions of Christians claiming their Bibles are changing? I have heard preachers also claim that the entire Christian Mandela effect community is simply made up of Youtube Christians or pseudo-Christians. The insinuation is that this entire group is so disreputable that no one should pay any attention to them. They will also suggest that anyone speaking out about this topic is just "in it for the money." Well...my channel is not monetized, my books are free and I don't sell T-shirts, vitamins or annuities. My wife divorced me and my children barely talk to me. Right now I am living with someone else so I am basically homeless. I'm not in it for the money. God supernaturally spoke to me to do this, so I'm "in it for the fear of the Lord and a zeal for God's house.

YOU'RE DECEIVED BY A GOVERNMENT PSYOP

If you want to suggest that we're simply deceived by a government psyop or photoshop tricks, I would simply ask you to explain how. This one level argument has no substance past the initial statement. There's no way to explain how the government psyop could accomplish what we are experiencing. How did the government get everybody in the world to remember "judge not lest ye be judged” and “the lord giveth and the lord taketh away.” If that’s your theory you have to be able to provide an explanation for how it was carried out.

PROPHECY FORETELLING THE EVENT

Most Christians who were confronted with the possibility that the Bible was supernaturally changing had the same reaction. They said, “God, if this is really happening, I’m going to need you to show it to me in the Scriptures.”

Here are four (4) passages that seem to foretell this event. These passages are treated in detail in the Supernatural Bible Change book starting on page 112

- Revelation 22:18 KJV: "For I testify unto every man that heareth the words of the prophecy of this book, If any man shall add unto these things, God shall add unto him the plagues that are written in this book."
- Daniel 12:4 KJV: "But thou, O Daniel, shut up the words, and seal the book, even to the time of the end: many shall run to and fro, and knowledge shall be increased."
- Daniel 7:25 KJV: "And he shall speak great words against the most High, and shall wear out the saints of the most High, and think to change times and laws: and they shall be given into his hand until a time and times and the dividing of time."
- Amos 8:11 KJV: "Behold, the days come, saith the Lord GOD, that I will send a famine in the land, not a famine of bread, nor a thirst for water, but of hearing the words of the LORD."

Examples of where God removed His word as a judgement

It’s not a heresy to suggest that God is allowing the Bible to be changed if He has done this many times before

- Amos 8:11 “Behold, the days are coming, declares the Lord GOD, when I will send a famine on the land - not a famine of bread or a thirst for water, but a famine of hearing the words of the LORD.”
- Lamentations 2:9 “Her king and her princes are exiled among the nations, the law is no more, and even her prophets find no vision from the LORD.”
- Psalms 74:9 “We do not see our signs; There is no longer any prophet; Nor is there any among us who knows how long. O God, how long will the adversary reproach? Will the enemy blaspheme Your name forever? Why do You withdraw Your hand, even Your right hand?”

- 1 Samuel 3:1 "Now the boy Samuel ministered to the Lord before Eli. And the word of the Lord was rare in those days; there was no widespread revelation."
- 2 Chronicles 15:3 "For a long time Israel was without the true God, without a priest to teach, and without the law."
- Ezekiel 7:26 "Mischief shall come upon mischief, and rumour shall be upon rumour; then shall they seek a vision of the prophet; but the law shall perish from the priest, and counsel from the ancients."
- Micah 3:6-7 "Therefore night will come over you, without visions, and darkness, without divination. The sun will set for the prophets, and the day will go dark for them. The seers will be ashamed and the diviners disgraced. They will all cover their faces because there is no answer from God."
- Hosea 4:6 "My people are destroyed from lack of knowledge. 'Because you have rejected knowledge, I also reject you as my priests; because you have ignored the law of your God, I also will ignore your children.'"
- Ezekiel 14:4 "I, the Lord, will answer him who comes, according to the multitude of his idols, that I may seize the house of Israel by their heart, because they are all estranged from Me by their idols."
- Ezekiel 14:9 "And if the prophet is deceived and speaks a word, I, the LORD, have deceived that prophet, and I will stretch out My hand against him and will destroy him from the midst of My people Israel."

Examples of where the Bible changed

This topic is covered in detail starting on page 351 of the Supernatural Bible Changes book. Here are a few observations

If the Bible has been changing since its inception, it's not heresy to suggest that it's changing now

Each new covenant introduces changes to the scripture.

Covenants for Israel

- Abrahamic
- Palestinian
- Mosaic
- Davidic

Covenants for all mankind

- Adamic
- Noahic
- New

The Old Testament and the New Testament represents a changing Bible

It doesn't matter what narrative you attach to this observation. The pure and simple observation is that the transition from the Old to New Testament introduced "change" into the text.

- Hebrews 8:7-8 "For if that first covenant had been faultless, then should no place have been sought for the second. For finding fault with them, he saith, Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, when I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel and with the house of Judah."

A "new" covenant is a changed covenant.

Scripture modifying scripture

- Preservation Promise - Psalm 12:6-7 "The words of the Lord are pure words, like silver refined in a furnace on the ground, purified seven times. You, O Lord, will keep them; you will guard us from this generation forever."
- Modifier - Daniel 7:25 "And he shall speak great words against the most High, and shall wear out the saints of the most High, and think to change times and laws: and they shall be given into his hand until a time and times and the dividing of time."

Daniel 7:25 doesn't only apply to Psalm 12; it gives theological permission to accept that the whole Bible can be changed. I found that pairing each one directly with a promise helps people see it better.

Let me explain this in layman's terms. If you're willing to consider that the Daniel 7:25 prophecy is an end-times prophecy as we discussed in chapter 2, then you can consider that it would modify any providential preservation promises just like the ones we have already examined. That's what I'm suggesting.

Here are more examples;

- Preservation Promise - Matthew 5:17 “For I tell you truly, until heaven and earth pass away, not a single jot, not a stroke of a pen, will disappear from the Law until everything is accomplished.”
- Modifier - Amos 8:11 “Behold, the days come, saith the Lord God, that I will send a famine in the land, not a famine of bread, nor a thirst for water, but of hearing the words of the Lord.”
- Preservation Promise - Psalm 119:89 “Forever, O LORD, thy word is settled in heaven.”
- Modifier #1 - Revelation 13:2 "And the beast which I saw was like unto a leopard, and his feet were as the feet of a bear, and his mouth as the mouth of a lion: and the dragon gave him his power, and his seat, and great authority."
- Modifier #2 - Revelation 13:7 “And it was given unto him to make war with the saints, and to overcome them: and power was given him over all kindreds, and tongues, and nations.”
- Preservation Promise - Isaiah 40:8 “The grass withers, the flower fades, but the word of our God will stand forever.”
- Modifier - 2 Thessalonians 2:9 “Even him, whose coming is after the working of Satan with all power and signs and lying wonders,”

Noah vs Noe proves that these are not “transliterations (KJV ONLY)

This KJV only example obliterates the phony backstory that these distorted doppelgangers of the names of all the patriarchs appear in the New Testament because they are transliterations. If this was true, then you would not have Noah and Noe appearing in the same KJV New testament and the same version.

Nobody remembers Noah being called Noe so please stop gaslighting everyone that this is normal. Is this something that you remember always being in your Bible, yes or no?

- Matthew 24:37-38 (KJV) "But as the days of Noe were, so shall also the coming of the Son of man be. For as in the days that were before the flood, they were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, until the day that Noe entered into the ark,"

Strongs G 3575 no'-eh Transliteration noe

- 1st Peter 3:20 "Which sometime were disobedient, when once the longsuffering of God waited in the days of Noah, while the ark was a preparing, wherein few, that is, eight souls were saved by water."

Strongs G 3575 no'-eh Transliteration noe

If it's the same word in the original language, which it is, and the Blue Letter Bible says that the transliteration is exactly the same for both words, which it does, then why would the translators translate it as Noe in the Gospels and Noah in the Epistles? The answer is they wouldn't. It's been supernaturally changed.

I consulted a renowned Bible scholar, and he said that the two words, which are translated differently into English, are derived from the same Greek word and the same dictionary. They both have the same transliteration, so there's no rational explanation why it would be transliterated differently in the same New Testament and in the same version.

Some have attempted to explain Noah's unique spelling of Noe in the New Testament by pointing out that the two audiences were made up of people with different ethnicities. But this is just stuff made up (SMU).

First of all, there is no way to tell from the scriptures what the ethnicity of the two audiences was. Here is anyone's best guess.

- Matthew 24:37-38 is probably addressed to a predominantly Jewish audience.
- 1 Peter 3:20 is probably addressed to early Christians, a mix of Jews and Gentiles in Asia Minor.

But even if you knew the ethnicity of the audience, what would be the source of this conclusion? How would someone making this claim know that the translators were operating by this rule? The King James translators had fifteen rules that they operated by, and none of them gives any instruction to consider the ethnicity of the audience when choosing how to translate a name into English.

The answer is that someone making this claim doesn't know. The fact that Noah is rendered Noe is one of the most compelling examples of a supernatural Bible change that I know of because:

- Both passages are translated from the same Greek word.
- Both passages have the same transliteration.
- Both passages appear in the same version.
- Both passages appear in the same New Testament.
- Most Christians do not remember this ever being in their Bibles this way.
